Blake of the State Highway Patrol leading, Massed Colors and Guard, Firing Squad, Grass Valley high school band, followed by the Gold Star Mothers and special guest in cars. Then the various Veteran Posts and their Auxiliaries and the C. C. C. men. This will comprise the first section.

After arriving at the cemetery the following program will be rendered:

All veterans are asked to wear dark trousers and white shirts.

TOM CAT ADOPTS FOUR MOTHERLESS CHICKS

This is the short story of a kind hearted Tom cat, named Billikens. He is big and yellow and mellow. He is the pet of Mrs. Mae Cowles, of Deer Creek who has a fine flock of poultry.

Last week a neighbor across Deer Creek lost a mother hen. Coon or coyote probably snatched it from this mortal world. The hen left four orphaned chicks. The neighbor gave them to Mrs. Cowles, who expected one of her own motherly biddies to adopt them. But hens have a curious dislike to progeny of other hens. It looked as if the newly befeaved chicks were doomed. The nights are chilly for young chicks.

In stepped Billikens. He circled around the four motherless chicks purring persuasively, he circled slowly, caustiously, coming closer all the time. The motherless chicks began to feel his warmth.

Finally Billikens curled up and laid down. The chicks snuggled into his vast furry "tummy" and kept warm. And now the four of them follow him around as though he was their regular mama. No, he doesn't rustle food for them. Don't ask too much of a Tom cat. But he does keep them wam o' nights.

WARREN MOOERS WILL HEAD HIGH STUDENT BODY

Students in the Nevada City hign school this noon elected Warren Mooers, student body president for the next school year. He received 64 votes. Miss Audrey Davis was runner up with 55 votes. Bill Polkinghorn was chosen student body secretary with Miss Margery Williams a close second.

The history of Nevada City high school amateur politics was colored by an ultra-red letter day last Friday. To begin with, excited groups gathered every where before school, at lunch time, and between classes to discuss the relative merits of the candidates. Never before has a student body presidency been contested with such vigor.

A forty minute assembly was held Friday morning for the purpose of hearing the formal nominating speeches for all the candidates, and to discuss and pass upon a plan of Mr. Kjorlie's for holding an all school picnic at Lake Olympia next Wednesday for those who marched in the Armistice parade. It was proposed that the school furnish the marchers food, lemonade, transportation and possibly free swimming.

This picnic would in the future take the place of all class and organization skip days and picnics, but this year the Searchlight and senior class picnics will be continued. The plan was discussed vigorously and when a vote was held it won by a substantial majority.

Friday noon an election was held for those candidates who were nominated at the assembly that morning.

The following is a complete list of the candidates:

For President; Warren Mooers, Audrey Davis, Dick Marriot, and Isabel Dunlap.

For Vice-President; Dick Stevens.

For Treasurer; Betty Foote and Claris Holland.

At the polls, about 113 studenth voted.

The election Friday noon was merely a primary, and the final election was held today. At the primary Dick Stevens was elected vice president, and Claris Holland, treasurer.

Mad Dog Bites Kiddies; Health Officer Warns Of Epidemic Menace

Treatment for hydrophobia must be given two little boys of North San Juan bitten last week by a dog which has since been proved to have been suffering from rabies.

The two children bitten last week were the seven year old son of Neal Ennis, and two year old son of Robert Stebbins both of North San Juan. The fangs of the dog slashed the younger child across the abdomen, the left arm and hand,, and cut the hand of the older boy.

The dog was killed in Grass Valley last Friday by Jack Nettle. It's head was sent to the University of California laboratories, according to a report received from the examination this morning, gave positive proof that the animal was suffering from rabies.

Dr. A. H. Tickell, county health officer this morning stated that after biting the two boys, the dog continued from the Ridge down along the Downieville highway to Grass Valley fighting other dogs in the road. He believes it is probable that several dogs were bitten and that an outbreak of rabies in this part of the county is impending. He states that wherever possible to identify them, dogs which came in contact with the mad animal, will be destroyed, but warns the public to be particularly careful in contacts with dogs, as rabies once epidemic are singularly hard to control and infinitely dangerous.

VETERANS WILL FORM PARADE ON MEMORIAL DAY

Banner Mountain Post, V. F. W., Auxiliary, is preparing to assist the Veterans in the Memorial Day parade which starts Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. The marchers will assemble in front of the Methodist church on Broad street and march first to Pine Grove cemetery, where a saluate is to be given, and then they will proceed to the Catholic cemetery, where war dead will also be honored.

The Auxiliary will entertain Mrs. Darrold DeCoe, of Sacramento, whose husband is an honored guest of the Veterans.

After the services, the Veterans and Auxiliary will go to the Day ranch to enjoy a basket lunch in the grove on the lake side.

The Auxiliary is holding a food sale Saturday, June 9, in front of the Alpha Hardware store.

TWO DRUNK DRIVERS GIVEN JAIL TERMS

Four drunken driving cases heard in Superior Court last Wednesday resulted in the following decisions:

Carl Curry, of Grass Valley, charged with driving while intoxicated, was denied probation and sentenced to four months in the county jail.

Mrs. Margaret Nevins-Spagnolly, of Grass Valley, charged with driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, was given a six months' county jail sentence, two months of which she must serve and the rest to be suspended providing she leaves the county and does not return.

Antone Norman, facing a like charge, pleaded not guilty and asked for a court trail. The trial was set by Judge Tuttle for May 29th at 10 o'clock.

Elmer Johnson, a Grass Valley carpenter, booked on a similar charge, pleaded guilty and asked for probation.

William Lozier, charged with grand theft, asked that his case be continued and an attorney be appointed for his defense. Attorney Vernon Stoll, of Grass Valley, was appointed. Lozier is charged with attempting to steal an automobile truck.

Rev. H. H. Buckner, of Nevada City, preached the funeral service of Mrs. Rena Morgan, in the Downieville Methodist church, Sunday afternoon. W. R. Jefford and Son had charge of funeral arrangements.

TWO ALLEGED DRUNK DRIVERS LODGED IN JAIL

Capt. Blake, of the Highway Patrol, last evening arrested two alleged drunken drivers in one car. They were Elmer H. Branch and Eddie Stewart, of Truckee. The men alternated at the wheel and according to Blake, each one was worse than the other. Blake arrested the two on the grade of the Tahoe-Ukiah highway, about a mile from Nevada City. He found the car parked about nine o'clock at night, with its rear sticking out into the road and came perilously near running into it with his new official car.

He asked the most sober of the two to steer the car into Nevada City, while he followed with his own, but as the car wove into and away from the bank narrowly missing other cars and often hovering precariously over the edge of the embankment, he had cause to regret trusting them for even that distance. Near the edge of the city limits he affected a change in drivers. The last driver proved the worst. He pittered through streets and nearly ran into the creek before crossing the Washington street bridge. Alongside the court house the driver wrecked the car against a telephone pole. It was here that District Attorney W. E. Wright happend by and assisted Blake in steering the two into the county lockup.

Arraigned this morning before Judge Walter Mobley, the bail of each was set at $2,000 cash or $4,000 property bond. In lieu of bail both men were remanded to the custody of the sheriff. They will appear in the Township court for preliminary hearing Thursday morning at 10:30 and 11 o'clock respectively.

SUPERVISORS RETURN FROM SANTA CRUZ MEET

The Nevada county supervisors and County Clerk R. N. McCormack, returned Saturday evening from the convention of supervisors in Santa Cruz. Many routine matters were discussed and R. C. Branion, federal relief administrator, was present to talk over loans to counties. After hearing the protests in regard to the present plan of counties borrowing money from the federal government, he stated another meeting is to be held with a new set-up to borrow money for relief for the unemployed in the state.

Supervisors making the trip were Frank Rowe, E. B. Dudley, Joseph Frank, Alex Robertson, C. S. Arbogast.

Evan Rushing, of San Francisco, epresenting the Edward's Wire Rope Company, is in town. Mr. Rushing expects to be here a week.

BOY DRIVER HITS PEDESTRIAN BREAKING BOTH ARMS AND LEGS

Fred Williams, of Truckee, was brought to the county hospital today suffering from four fractures. Each arm was broken near the elbow and each leg near the knee, besides cuts and contusions on other parts of the body. He had been run down by a boy driving an automobile. Dr. A. H. Tickell reduced the fractures and treated him.

PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX DELINQUENT JUNE 30

County Assessor J. M. Hammill, through an advertisement in the Nugget, is calling attention to the act that all those who have not made payment of their personal property taxes, not secured by property tax, have but a little more than a month to do so.

These taxes are delinquent June 30, and the county assessor is authorized by law to seize and sell the property for the unpaid taxes. This applies to automobiles and all other personal property. Auto owners will find it to their interest to pay taxes on their cars and receive a tax clearance from the assessor, for without it they cannot renew their auto licenses.

All war veterans who are entitled to exemption of tax payments on $1,000 of their property, must come to the office and make an affadavit of their service and honorable discharge. If they fail they are liable to payment of taxes on their property. The law requires that the exemptions be filed each year and there are quite a number of these exemptions which have not been claimed.

NEW HOME TO REPLACE EARLY DAY RESIDENCE

The home of Mrs. Annie Godfrey, an old Landmark in Nevada City, located at the corners of Nivens Alley and East Broad street has been torn down and carpenters are now erecting a new modern home for her. Mrs. Godfrey has resided in Nevada City for many years.

A large boulder in the yard is known as the "medicine rock." In the early days Indians went to this rock for healing. The rock has a concave surface and heat reflected onto their bodies relieved pain and they held it as a medicine rock.

DRY WASHER INSTALLED AT FRENCH CORRAL

The French Corral gravel mine, near French Corral, has changed hands recently and is now being opened by Mrs. F. Saddler and Mr. Gladman of Oakland.

The new company has installed a new dry washer which it is claimed will handle five yards or seven tons of gravel per yard. This property has been handicapped through lack of water and if this method is a success in this section it will be an aid to many gravel properties now closed by water shortage.

EMPRESS MINE IS DEVELOPING BIG ORE BODY

For some time crews have been drifting east and west on the 1,000 foot level in the Empress mine, in the Newtown district. The east drift has been holding up well, while the drift to the west was on a hanging wall vein six feet wide. After following the vein for 260 feet, a new vein was discovered. With the opening of the new vein, 12 feet of good milling grade ore now shows in the breast.

The old Mulcahey ranch home is being removed and the site cleared for the erection of the 200 ton daily capacity reduction plant. Edward C. Jacobs is general manager and superintendent.

LOZIER TRIAL SET

Drunken Driver Goes To Jail For 6 Months

Elmer Johnson, Grass Valley, who pleaded guilty last week in the Superior Court to drunken driving, this morning was sentenced by Judge Raglan Tuttle to one year in San Quentin. The sentence was suspended under these probationary conditions: that Johnson spend 6 months in the county jail, pay $15 per month for two years, $5 of which will go into the county treasury and $10 to the family of the woman injured when his car, guided by his drunken hand, hit another car in Grass Valley two weeks ago. His license to drive is automatically cancelled and he was placed on probation for two years. Violation of the terms of his probation will send him to San Quentin.

In imposing this sentence upon Johnson, Judge Tuttle declared that the defendant was fortunate that he did not stand before the court on a conviction of manslaughter, as the accident which sadly crippled one of the women in the car which his automobile wrecked might easily have resulted fatally.

Johnson last week asked for probation but this was denied. The court commented on the special gravity of the offense and declared that all drunken drivers were potential killers.

Old Theory Disproved by German Scientists

We have fifteen senses, not five, according to German men of science who are determined to upset old-fashioned theories, says the San Francisco Chronicle.

Among them are the sense of temperature, for instance, which is not merely the old-fashioned sense of touch but an entirely different matter. If the sense of temperature is lost a man is able to touch fiery coals without pain. Some parts of the body have an apparently strong sense of temperature, as, for instance, the tongue and the eyelid, which are especially sensitive to heat.

The "muscle sense" is a new discovery of Professor Frey. It is closely related to the sense of balance. On board ship, for instance, the muscle sense tells you what movement you must make to counteract the rolling of the ship.

Reed's Victory Over Pinchot Delights Opponents of New Deal—NRA Will Abandon Codes for Small Businesses.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© by Western Newspaper Union.

SENATOR DAVID A. REED of Pennsylvania, fighting in the Republican primaries for re-nomination, emerged from the hectic battle victorious over his rival, Gov. Gifford Pinchot. Reed's majority was in the neighborhood of 100,000, and long before all the returns were in Governor Pinchot gave up and wired his congratulations to the senator.

Senator Reed

Since Senator Reed, one of the Old Guard conservatives, has been an unrelenting critic of the New Deal, and Governor Pinchot, a "progressive" Republican, has given his full support to President Roosevelt's policies, the result of the primaries was hailed with glee by opponents of the national administration. Both the candidates made the New Deal the issue in their campaign, and when the governor was prevented by illness from making speeches, Mrs. Pinchot took the stump and vigorously defended the President's programs of recovery. Notwithstanding all this, Postmaster Farley said: "I do not regard the defeat of Governor Pinchot as a New Deal test," and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic leader, took the same attitude. President Roosevelt refused to comment.

Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee, issued a pronouncement that the Pennsylvania primary result was "a great victory for the American citizen who wants a square deal and not a New Deal."

Governor Pinchot, who has tried twice before to get into the senate, said he would continue to fight for the interests of the people against concentrated wealth, and it was reported that he would run independently in November.

Joe Guffey, Democratic leader in Pennsylvania, easily won his party's nomination for the senate, but the Republicans claim he will have small chance against Reed in the election.

New Jersey also held a primary election. The Republicans nominated Senator Hamilton F. Kean for re-election and Harold G. Hoffman for governor. The Democrats who will oppose them are Gov. Harry A. Moore and Judge William L. Dill.

LEADERS of the Republican party in Indiana turned down Senator Arthur R. Robinson quite decisively. They not only defeated his plan to gain control of the party organization, but also refused to give assurance that he would be unopposed for renomination in the state convention June 5. The best the senator could get was an indorsement of his fight in the senate "for constitutional government" and for his stand "against bureaucracy as exemplified by the Democratic party and its administration."

Among those mentioned as possible rivals of Robinson for the nomination are former Senator Jim Watson, former Representative Frederick Landis and former Gov. Harry G. Leslie. Robinson angered the state committee by attacking its officers.

IN ORDER that congress may adjourn June 5, the President and several congressional leaders got together and pared down the legislative program. They agreed to limit the "must" bills to four measures. These are:

The one billion, three hundred million-dollar emergency appropriation bill carrying funds for the continuation of the New Deal relief activities.

The communications control bill proposing the consolidation of federal regulation over all communications.

The loans to industries bill, authorizing RFC and federal reserve bank advances to smaller industries on intermediate credit terms.

The deposit insurance extension bill, continuing the temporary federal bank deposit guarantee plan for another year in lieu of putting the permanent program contained in the Glass banking bill into effect at this time.

Mr. Roosevelt sent to congress a message explaining why the first named bill is necessary, and urging that no more than the amount asked be appropriated.

One other measure that may be put through at this session is the silver bill upon which the President and the silver bloc agreed and which was to be introduced with a message from Mr. Roosevelt. As predicted, this is a compromise containing these provisions:

A declaration of policy that the government recognizes silver as primary money and that the nation's metallic reserves shall be 25 per cent silver and 75 per cent gold. This is mandatory.

The secretary of the treasury is authorized and directed to purchase silver until it reaches $1.29 an ounce or until its metallic reserve strength reaches 25 per cent. This is both permissive and mandatory.

The President is authorized to nationalize silver through condemnation. This is permissive.

CONSIDERATION of the records of three Chicago federal judges in receivership and bankruptcy cases were under consideration by the house judiciary committee, with the possibility of impeachment in prospect. A subcommittee turned in a report on the jurists, Charles E. Woodward, James H. Wilkerson and Walter G. Lindley, making no recommendations for or against impeachment but criticizing sharply their allowances for attorney and receiver fees.

With respect to Judge John P. Barnes, who has handled several receiverships and bankruptcies in the federal courts at Chicago since 1933, the subcommittee declared it had "no criticism as to his conduct in these matters."

"SNATCHERS" are not faring so well in the far west and southwest. Six-year-old June Robles, who was kidnaped from Tucson, Ariz., was found in a tomb-like hole where she had been kept chained, and there were good chances that her abductors would be caught. The child was weak but uninjured.

Los Angeles police in a sudden raid freed William F. Gettle, oil millionaire who had been kidnaped and held for a large ransom, and arrested three of the men who abducted him. The trio confessed, were promptly given life sentences and are now in the San Quentin prison.

GENERAL JOHNSON and his assistants in the NRA are tired of trying to enforce the multiplicity of codes for small groups, and therefore the administration has decided to abandon thousands of those arranged for lesser industrial plants and service establishments. In fact, to regulate prices and trade practices and innumerable details in countless small businesses has proved to be impracticable and the effort has taken an outrageously large percentage of NRA work and funds.

Gen. Johnson

Johnson said he was working on arrangements to substitute simple agreements for codes covering small industries. These agreements merely will cover wages, hours and the collective bargaining guarantees of the recovery act.

The silk textile industry found itself overloaded with surpluses of goods, and the NRA permitted all the mills to shut down for one week, during which time 30,000 workers are unemployed. The shutdown was ordered by the silk textile authority.

STRIKES in many branches of the automobile industry will occur unless the striking employees of the Fisher Body plant at Flint, Mich., win their demands, according to President Green of the American Federation of Labor.

"The strike of the workers employed at the Fisher Body plant at Flint, Mich., reflects the spirit of unrest and discontent which prevails among the automobile workers at the present time," Green said in a statement.

"There will be no peace in the automobile industry," he added, "until the grievances of the workers are fairly settled, discrimination and coercion stopped, the right of collective bargaining established and company union domination and intimidation stopped."

Green said the unrest hinged on the issue of company unions and that automobile workers were "resentful" that the settlement of the threatened automobile industry strike a few weeks ago was generally hailed as a triumph for the company union and a defeat for organized labor.

Dissatisfaction has been accentuated, he added, "because of the failure of the automobile labor board to function properly and effectively."

Labor troubles along the American waterfronts increased daily. On the Pacific coast thousands of seamen quit work in sympathy with the striking longshoremen, and the mayor of Seattle asked Secretary of the Interior Ickes for federal troops to protect nonunion workers. In the ports of the Great Lakes a general strike of tugmen was threatened. At Galveston the longshoremen were still out, and hundreds of other workers went on strike.

CAPT. GEORGE POND and Lieut. Cesare Sabelli opened the ocean flying season with an attempt to make a nonstop hop from New York to Rome—a thing that has never yet been done. They ran into dense fogs and head winds over the Atlantic and then had such serious engine trouble that they were forced to land their big Bellanca monoplane, the Leonardo da Vinci, on the west coast of Ireland. According to their stories the aviators were mighty fortunate that they did not fall into the ocean and drown.

BY A vote of 62 to 13 the senate passed the Fletcher-Rayburn bill which places the securities markets of the country under the regulatory control of a federal commission. The measure already had passed the house, but with the provision that the federal trade commission should be the regulatory body, and this difference, together with the house's provision for a fixed margin requirement, caused some delay in the conference. At a press conference President Roosevelt stated that he preferred the house version of the bill in those two particulars and that he had told the chairman of the committees so, although he had kept his hands off the measure until it was passed by both house and senate.

THE White Star liner Olympic, coming slowly into port in a fog, rammed and sank the Nantucket lightship, seven of the latter's crew being killed and four, including Capt. George Braithwaite, saved. Captain Binks of the Olympic blames the accident on an error in the radio direction beam which he was following, though this device has heretofore been considered infallible. He admitted, however, that at the time of the collision he was five miles off his supposed course and that his radio signals, submarine signals and reckoning all misled him as to his real position.

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY SWANSON announced that as soon as funds can be obtained from the public works appropriation asked by the President, the construction of twenty warships will begin. These vessels, it is estimated, will cost $40,000,000.

This building program will include twelve destroyers, two destroyer leaders, and six submarines, forming the first year's program under the Vinson act, which authorized the replacement of 102 ships to bring the navy up to full treaty strength by the end of 1939. The policy of the administration is to lay down the rest of the 102 replacement ships in the next four years.

FOR twenty-six years a prejudice dating back to the Civil war has kept the state of Virginia from being represented in the Statuary hall in the Capitol at Washington. This state of affairs has now come to an end, for congress has accepted as gifts from Virginia the two statues which were first offered in 1908 and rejected. They are a copy of the famous statue of Washington by Houdin and a statue of Gen. Robert E. Lee by Valentine.

Senator Walsh of Massachusetts presided at the ceremonies and by his side was Senator Glass of Virginia. The presentation was made by Gov. George Peery of Virginia and the chief speaker was Dr. Francis Gaines, president of Washington and Lee university.

"WORLD Good Will day" was May 18, and to mark it students from colleges in all parts of the country gathered in Washington and staged a demonstration in support of world disarmament. Miss Elizabeth Wheeler, daughter of United States Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, was chairman of the affair, and after the meeting Miss Wheeler led a delegation to the White House and presented to President Roosevelt a petition asking him to take the lead in securing a world treaty for complete disarmament.

Miss Elizabeth Wheeler

News from abroad indicates that this is imposing a tremendous task on Mr. Roosevelt, for the prospects of disarmament are growing slimmer daily. There is no abatement of the quarrel between France and Germany over German rearming, and France has lengthened the term of service of its soldiers, which example Belgium probably will follow. Hungary and Jugoslavia are engaged in a bitter border dispute and the former has asked for help from the League of Nations council, which has opened another session in Geneva. Japan, still stubbornly aloof, seems to be seeking a new cause for hostilities against China, alleging that a number of Japanese soldiers were killed by Chinese troops.

The League's commission on the Paraguay-Bolivia war in the Gran Chaco submitted a report recommending that all nations of the world, especially the American republics, be asked to join in an effort to shut off from the two South American countries all the materials necessary to carry on a war.

WAR in Arabia has come to an end for the present, an armistice having been officially announced. King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia, apparently is the victor, for it was stated his terms had been accepted by the Imam Yahya of Yemen, though the terms of the treaty were not made public immediately. Ibn Saud's modernly equipped armies already had captured Hodeida, the Yemen seaport.

King Ibn Saud has been gradually extending his power since 1924, and it was believed he intended to add Yemen to his territories. He took advantage of a border quarrel to start hostilities some weeks ago. In a recent interview Ibn Saud said: "I have never envisaged territorial expansion, and I have never desired to conquer Yemen, but just as the conquest of Hejaz was forced upon me a decade ago by the hostilities of King Hussein, similarly Yahya has forced war upon me now by sending troops into Nasir and Najran while nominally engaged in negotiations for peaceful settlement."

SYNOPSIS

At the close of the Mexican war, Robin Kershaw, with his bride, rode into northeastern California. Here he found an ideal valley for cattle raising. They christened it Eden Valley. Below Eden Valley is a less valuable tract which Kershaw's wife names Forlorn Valley. Joel Hensley settles in the lower half of the valley. There is bad blood over fences and water. Kershaw kills Hensley and the blood-feud is on. By 1917, Rance Kershaw, his son Owen, and daughter Lorry are all that remains of one clan. Nate Tichenor is the sole survivor on the Hensley side. He goes to help Lorry in her car and finds her father has died of heart disease. Silas Babson, banker, schemes to control the irrigation and hydro-electric possibilities of Eden Valley. Nate tells Lorry he and Owen, Lorry's brother, met in France just before Owen was killed, and Nate promised that if he survived Owen he would look after Lorry as a brother might do. Babson makes legal application for the allocation of flood waters to the Forlorn Valley irrigation district. With money advanced by Nate, Lorry clears up her indebtedness to Babson. Nate finds he is falling in love with Lorry. Babson discovers Nate is behind a rival power project. Nate tells Lorry he loves her. She admits she loves Nate, and they become engaged. Babson orders Joe Brainerd, editor of the local paper, to attack Nate as an enemy of the people. This Brainerd refuses to do. Nate comes to Brainerd's rescue financially. The editor celebrates by punching Babson's head.

"Well," Joe Brainerd answered slowly, "I'm certainly glad you're my friend and not my enemy. Do you want me to spread the glad tidings of your contemplated philanthropy to Forlorn Valley?"

"No, keep that news bottled up. I want to have the people meet me with all the acclaim a Roman mob was wont to accord the entrance of the Christian martyrs in the Coliseum. I want Babson to lead them on to make fools of themselves, so I can show him up later for a false leader."

"Almost everybody here calls the other fellow by his first name. My name's Joe. May I call you Nate?" he said."

"The pleasure is mutual, Joe. You may."

They shook hands. And then Joe Brainerd glanced at the clock. "Excuse me, Nate. It's five minutes of three and I have just time to get to the bank and deposit this manna from Heaven. I'll fill your check in for six thousand"—and he did.

Babson glared at the editor as the latter came into the bank, but said nothing until Brainerd was about to depart.

"Brainerd, this bank doesn't want your business! Close out your account."

"Thanks for the information. I have just deposited Nate Tichenor's check for six thousand dollars. It's on a San Francisco bank, and as soon as it has gone through clearing I'll give you my check for what I owe the bank and then clean the balance right out. I wouldn't keep tin money in a bank I know is going to bust."

"So you've sold out to Tichenor," Babson jeered.

Little Joe Brainerd's face grew red; he swelled like a turkey gobbler. "You insulted me yesterday and I poked you twice for it," he screamed. "Now you've insulted me again and I'm going to clean up on you." Then he leaped. In reality, he bounded like a tennis ball clearing the railing and landing beside Babson's desk.

"Henry! Help, help," Babson shrilled to his satellite. "Call Bill Rooney," he ordered his stenographer. Then he went down under the impact of Joe Brainerd's furious onslaught, whereupon the editor crawled him and hammered him until his fists hurt him, after which he grasped Babson by the throat and bumped his head against the floor. He was like a desperado of the olden days who, having cleaned out a barroom, could not be happy until he had shot out the lights. He had landed heavily twice on Henry Rookby when the latter interfered, and when Deputy Sheriff Bill Rooney came puffing into the bank in response to the stenographer's summons, Mr. Rookby was crouching in his locked cage, while the demon editor strove to climb over the steel wire netting to get at him.

"Joe, you stop that," Mr. Rooney commanded, grasped the little madman by the seat of the trousers and jerked him down. "Boy, you ain't actin' right."

"You serve Babson's writs of attachment, you fat fool," Brainerd shrieked, and presented Mr. Rooney with a decoration commonly known as a mouse on the eye. Out of his good eye Mr. Rooney observed that his quarry was weeping with rage; so he folded Brainerd to his ample abdomen and carried the lunatic out of the bank, screaming and kicking, and secured him in the local bastile.

"It's war," Brainerd screamed, as Rooney turned the key in the lock. "Babson accused me of selling out. Selling out! Understand? He said I'd sold out! I'm free! I'll print the news, but—you watch my editorials. I'll sizzle like a Roman candle, because I'm free. I'm free, I'm free . . ."

He was stretched out on a bench weeping childishly when Nate Tichenor came over and bailed him out. "The war is on," he sobbed. "The war is on, Nate, and I've fired the first gun."

* * * * * * * *

The power of Silas Babson in Valley Center was very apparent to Nate Tichenor when, having called upon Anson Towle, who combined with harness and saddlery and notary public the duties of local justice of the peace, he was informed that Babson had sworn to a warrant charging Joe Brainerd with assault and battery, malicious mischief and disturbing the peace, and that bail had been set at one thousand dollars in each case.

"Better lower it, judge," Tichenor suggested amiably.

"That feller," his honor replied, "will stay in Bill Rooney's jail until somebody hands me three thousand."

"Orders from headquarters, I suppose, judge."

"You fixin' to get yourself into jail for contempt o' court?"

Nate leaned across Towle's desk. "Yes, I am. And what are you going to do about it, you brainless invertebrate? You're not holding court now, are you? The limit of bail to be set in such cases is five hundred dollars on each charge. Here's fifteen hundred dollars, and you take it and give me an order on Bill Rooney to release Joe Brainerd, or I'll go over to the jail, hog-tie Rooney and take Joe Brainerd out of jail myself."

Probably no man in Forlorn Valley knew less of the law than this village justice of the peace; but he had heard of the Hensley clan and here was the last of that tribe of killers glaring at him so ferociously his Honor trembled. "Well, rather than git into a row with you, young feller, an' have to kill you in self-defense," he decided, "I'll set the bail at the minimum figger. Case comes up for trial at ten o'clock tomorrer mornin'."

"If you're scheming to send Joe Brainerd up for six months without the alternative of a fine I'd advise you to change your mind. And how's that for contempt of court?"

The case was called at ten and at ten-thirty, when Silas Babson, the complaining witness, had not appeared, Nate Tichenor, acting as Brainerd's attorney, rose and moved Anson Towle that the case be dismissed for lack of evidence. "Take my word for it, your Honor, neither Mr. Babson nor any of his witnesses will appear. Mr. Babson has—as I assumed he would—thought it over and decided to let bygones be bygones. The message your Honor carried to him from me yesterday evening was very convincing."

"Fined two dollars for contempt of court. Case dismissed."

"Will the court please state in what manner I have been guilty of contempt."

"You're intimatin' that I carried Si Babson a message tellin' him to lay off Joe Brainerd or he'd git himself in trouble."

"You should read up on the law. You can't fine me for contempt alleged to have been conveyed in a mere suspicion on the part of your Honor. I shall not pay the two dollars and what is your Honor going to do about it?"

A guffaw went up from the crowded courtroom, nor could all of Bill Rooney's pounding on a table quiet it. As an officer of the court, i.e. bailiff, Mr. Rooney felt that his own dignity had been more or less assailed by Nate Tichenor when the latter had so adroitly managed to upset that of the court.

"You just wait a minute, Tichenor." Bill Rooney's voice was as honey. "I'll just fan you, young feller, an' see if you're carryin' a concealed weapon. Carryin' a gun without a permit don't go in my jurisdiction."

"I am carrying a gun, Mr. Rooney, so I'll spare you the effort of searching me and produce my gun at least one second before you produce yours."

Bill Rooney went white and then pink; he wet his lips, and his glance flinched from Tichenor's and roved over the courtroom. Then the deputy sheriff had a brilliant idea. "It happens I ain't wearin' my gun this mornin', Tichenor."

Before the words were fairly out of his mouth he was gazing down the barrel of Nate Tichenor's pistol. "Stand up, turn your back on the crowd and lift up your coat-tails," came the ringing order.

Tichenor advanced upon the deputy sheriff, thrust his gun in the official midriff and, with his left hand, unbuckled a belt at Rooney's waist and removed a pistol in a holster. Then he walked up on Judge Towle's dais, broke his own pistol and exhibited a single empty chamber to the gaping crowd.

"An empty pistol is not a more lethal weapon than any other piece of hardware and when worn in a shoulder holster or under the coat-tails, doesn't come under the head of concealed weapons. Here's your gun, windbag"—and returned the wretched Rooney his pistol. "This weapon of mine, which you thought was an army automatic, is the latest model air-pistol. It shoots a tiny pellet that will kill a bird, and I bought it recently to practice pistol shooting by killing blue-jays around my ranch." He turned his back on Rooney. "And now, fellow citizens, you know how brave Mr. Rooney is—in his mind. And you know just what peculiar thoughts occasionally flit through the mind of your justice of the peace. Your local law mill is in bad shape and ought to be reorganized." He moved down the aisle toward the door, and Joe Brainerd followed.

"Nate," said Joe Brainerd. "As one outlaw to the other tell me why you made such pitiful monkeys out of Towle and Rooney?"

"Well, that fool justice of the peace had it coming to him for trying to take up the Babson cudgels against you. I concluded to strike another blow for the editor. As for Bill Rooney—well, I hold an ancient grudge against Bill. At school I used to carry a gun for Owen Kershaw. The teacher found it out and told the principal, who ordered me to leave it home. I refused, because I thought I couldn't afford to risk obedience in those days; so the principal told Bill Rooney on me. Bill was the night watchman then, so he frisked me, took my gun away from me and gave me a first-class thrashing. I hesitated at making reprisals until I should be older and stronger, when I planned to give Bill a thrashing with his own belt. Today was my first opportunity."

"Your clan had a reputation for cold-blooded courage and ferocity, Nate—and you've revived it. So today you're a hero in Forlorn Valley, but when you organize to deprive this valley of the water from Eden Valley creek you're going to be the most hated man in this county."

"But I'm not going to deprive Forlorn Valley of Eden Valley water. I've assured you of that already."

"Oh yes, you are. You'll have to, if not for your own sake then for the sake of Lorry Kershaw. I'm going to let you in on a secret—now that Babson is my enemy. He plans, after organizing the irrigation district, to tap Eden Valley creek at the head of the Handle, up in the public domain, lead the water west through the public domain and down to a natural reservoir in the hills off to the west; thence into Forlorn Valley."

"But, Joe, it would be silly of Forlorn Valley to tap the stream up in the Pan. I have a splendid dam site and it is to my interest to see the dam erected there. In that way Miss Kershaw and I, with our ranches upstream from that dam, will always be assured of an abundant supply of irrigating water."

"Exactly. But if Forlorn Valley taps the stream above your ranches, Miss Kershaw, you, and the Mountain Valley Power company will be out of luck. Then, too, the reservoir of the Mountain Valley Power company would never have sufficient water to fill it and your company would be deprived of the ability to manufacture power."

"I don't know the law in the premises, Joe, but this is what I plan to do. I'll attend that mass meeting, listen to what is said and, if it appears to be the sense of the meeting that an irrigation district shall be formed and the water supply secured from Eden Valley creek up in the Handle, I'll tell the people to forget all that bother and expense, that I'll put in a dam on the Mountain Valley Power company's property at my own expense, provided they will enter into contract to purchase water from me and provided, of course, that we can come to terms. My plan is economically sound, and I think they'll be glad to entertain it."

"I hope so, Nate, but before you commit yourself in public I suggest that you make certain of your rights. If I were you I'd consult some eminent firm of attorneys whose specialty is water law."

"I shall. I suppose I can find the right lawyers in San Francisco."

The following morning Tichenor was in San Francisco and, acting upon the advice of his attorney, he sought the offices of Messrs. Brooks, Gagan and Brooks. Gagan received him and listened without interruption while Nate outlined the situation.

"I know all about that Eden Valley proposition, Mr. Tichenor," he then announced. "A Mr. Silas Babson, of Valley Center, interviewed me on the subject recently, but he did not retain us. In fact, certain aspects of the advice I gave him appeared to conflict with his own opinion of the situation."

"Well, he's liable to be around later to retain you, although I hope to restrain him by employing peaceable and profitable measures. Meanwhile, I haven't any business for you, save to outline for me the legal rights of Miss Kershaw and the Bar H Land and Cattle company in the premises. I'll pay your fee for that, so please fire away."

"You can win any suit filed against you with the exception of a condemnation suit," Gagan said.

"I was quite certain of that before I called upon you, but merely desired to have an expert verify my suspicions. A non-riparian community—Forlorn Valley—is about to form an irrigation district on the strength of a promise of the state water commission that it will allocate to the proposed district the storm, flood, freshet, or so-called waste waters of Eden Valley creek. Miss Kershaw and I make beneficial use of all of the overflow waters of Eden Valley creek every spring, and no waters are waste waters until after they have flown over our lands. The irrigation district purposes tapping the creek near its source in the public domain and appropriating the flood or waste waters before such waters have flowed over our lands.

Tests Show Women Lead Taking Hints, but Men Found Better at Reasoning

If women do not reason as well as do men they are better at taking hints with the result that they may more nearly approach the achievements of men. This is one conclusion drawn from a series of reasoning tests given 384 students at the University of Michigan by the university psychology department, reported in the British Journal of Psychology.

Using students in the beginning psychology course as subjects, they were divided into two groups, one of which received some general hints on what not to do when solving the problems presented. The second group received no suggestions. The hints were given in connection with one of these problems and it was solved by twice as many individuals as the other problem.

Because the suggestions were in general advice against depending on habitual patterns of thought and blind persistence in attempting to solve problems, and because the tasks were best done when the hints are given, it is concluded from the experiments that the type of reasoner most successful in problem-solving is the one who can suppress or inhibit his habitual line of thought to allow free play of new ideas and thought patterns.

The women students were regularly poorer than the men in problem reasoning, even though all the problems were not of a "mechanical" nature, which might be more favorable to men. Those in the group receiving suggestions, however, raised their solving average markedly, apparently benefiting comparatively more from the hints than did the men in the same group. The men's scores in this group rose decidedly, but the women scored higher.

Mount St. Mary's

(Contributed)

Mount Saint Mary's Academy in Grass Valley is a greater asset to Nevada and the adjoining counties than many people realize. The yearly expenditure of the Sisters of Mercy amounts to more than $23,000. An account of this size, in any community, effects the entire population, whether business man professional man or merchant. When the grocer has money, he has more to spend for clothing, or movies, or the new car, or radio, or whether his particular desire may be. The same principle applies all along the line, everybody profits by money in circulation and all feel the pinch when income is taken away. If for no reason other than a mercenary one, the counties located near Grass Valley should support this institution.

The parents of growing children appreciate the value of Mount Saint Mary's for its moral and educational standards, and today as never before, children need to be well equipped mentally and physically for their battle with the every day world. Our parents, from their meager means, managed to help maintain the Academy that we might enjoy the benefits, surely we shall not fail to do as much for our children.

Many firms profit by the maintenance of the Sisters' Academy. Their expenditure of $46,446 during 1932 and 1933 covers maintenance of buildings, insurance, taxes, fuel, water, gas, electricity, telephone, food, advertising, stationery, shoes and repairs, dry goods, hospital and dental service, drugs, freight and laundry.

Mount Saint Mary's Academy, in common with all institutions, firms and individuals, has felt the depression. It has now become necessary for the Sisters to appeal to the people for financial assistance. They are confident the people will respond to their call for aid and do everything possible to make a success of the sales plan inaugurated by the merchants of Grass Valley and Nevada City.

The drawing under the sales plan has been postponed until Saturday, June 23, in order to allow time for the remainder of the tickets to be sold. There are ten valuable prizes offered. Get your ticket today. Practically every store in Grass Valley and Nevada City has tickets for sale, or they can be secured direct from headquarters, 219 West Main Street, Grass Valley, or The Lace House, 207 Broad Street, Nevada City.

Grandad Comes Back

Grandad came back to "them thar hills;"
He'd "left 'em long afore,"
To drift around the U. S. A.
For fifty years or more.
He cast a cursory glance about,
And every change decried,
Then, with a sadly jaundiced eye,
He toured the countryside.

At length the poor old chap returned
With acrimonius words;
He couldn't see the bright spring flowers,
Or hear the singing birds.
"I couldnt' find Dad's Gulch," he snapped,
"And sure as I was bo'n,
I didn't recognize the place
They're callin' old San Juan!"

"Where's Whisky Diggin's? Tell me that,"
The irate oldster said,
"And where's the hoof defyin' path
That down Steep Hollow led?
There's nary trace of Dead Horse Flat,
Shirt Tail an' Lousy Level;
It sure does seem them good old camps
Has gone plum to the devil!"

"Oh dad," we cried, "don't feel so blue,
We've many a fine town yet;
Twin Cities dad, and French Corral,
Town Talk and old You Bet.
Of course some camps have petered out,
But some are roaring still;
There's Downieville, and Goodyear's Bar,
Pike too, and Depot Hill."

"Well, mebby so," grandad replied,
"There's life in Lava Cap;
But Jackass Gulch has gone to rot,
An' Mad Mule's off the map;
I guess I'll stick around a spell
An' swaller my regret,
For though some camps has petered out
Ther may be good leads yet."

And now grandad is well content,
Light hearted too, and meek;
He's panning out four bits per day
Down here on old Deer Creek.

A. Merriam Conner.

DECREASE SHOWN IN CALIF. DEER

Increased numbers of predatory animals, inadequate winter range, illegal hunting and disease are given as the principal causes of an 11 per cent decrease in blacktail deer and an eight per cent decrease in mule deer in the 18 national forest of California, according to a report on wild life compiled by Regional Forester S. B. Show, chief of the California Region, U. S. Forest Service, from observations made last winter by forest rangers.

Measures recommended by the Forest Service to conserve the 157,000 mule deer and the 95,900 blacktail deer now estimated as a part of the game population of the national forests of California call for a one-buck bag limit for the entire state and the protection of forked-horn bucks in all districts. Starvation such as occurred during the severe winter of 1932-33 because of inadequate winter range can be remedied, according to Show, by the acquisition of private foothill lands within and adjoining the national forests and the management of these areas for game production. It is recommended that the hunting season in district 1 and one-half, be shortened 15 days so as to make it agree with the season in district 1; also that the last 15 days be cut off the deer hunting season in district 1 and three-fourths, making the season September 16 to September 30.

From the best information available by forest officers, 93,960 hunters killed 6,177 blacktails and 7,690 mule deer in the national forests in 1933. Predatory animals are charged with the killing of over 29,000 deer, or twice as many as hunters. Since 1927 the number of hunters in the state has increased 15 per cent, while the number hunting within national forests has doubled.

GRAVEL MILL INSTALLED AT BLUE POINT MINE

A new 100 yard per day gravel mill with the pebble separation type of reduction instead of crushing, is being installed at the Blue Point gravel property near Smartsville. Recovery is to be by the usual sluice box method. Limited production is going on now from development. A revolving mill unit separtes the gravel.

The gravel channel is being tapped through both the main tunnel shaft and an auxiliary tunnel, the latter to provide a second exit and ventilation. The face of the main tunnel is now in bedrock and it is believed the Blue Point channel. Upraises will be run to test the gravel.

The new company which has nad charge of the property about a year, have carried out the development with more system than any previous operators. Milton D. Paine, who resides in Grass Valley, is in charge.

Cabbages and Kings

By CHRISTIAN ANDERSEN

The story of David and Goliath has always held me spellbound, perhaps the contrast in the physique of the two men, then today as I again heard the story, my mind went to other heroes of history who have by their spectacular heroism or knowledge, become leaders and rulers in their respective countries—Napoleon, the Corsican, who nearly ruled the world, Bismark, Gustavus Adolphus, Monsieur, "The Tiger of France," Clemenceau, our own Teddy an so on ad infinitum. Somewhere of course, opportunists while others dominated by real ability. What I mean to bring out is that they all got the "breaks" almost necessary to success. By this I don't mean luck, I mean that they had the understanding that their opportunity had arrived and they simply grasped it. The moral is of course that we try to do the same, anyway it is fun even if we miss the grip on time's forelock.

Sometimes personal anecdotes are boresome and are dominated by ego of the teller. With that preface knowing the worst fault of story tellers. I ought to be able to perpetrate a true one. When a boy, I lived in Denmark. We came to the table five times a day for refreshments of some kind—about seven a. m., coffee with a small sandwich, nine o'clock breakfast of mush and milk and the thick muddy coffee which only chicory can make, twelve noon the dinner consisting of soup, meat, vegetables and desert, then in the summer the afternoon siesta for about an hour. In this hour a boy can find a lot of mischief to be done. One day I went into the gooseberry patch and filled my hat with ripe gooseberries, as I came out from the bushes I saw my aunt coming down the path close by. I quickly put the hat on my head and nonchalantly faced her. She asked me what I was doing. "Just walking," I said. Just then she brought her hand down on my head and that sort of personal contract makes gooseberry jam. The culprit stood revealed. Well to go on with the meals, after the siesta there was coffee with a lump of rock sugar in the mouth—four o'clock supper, and at seven o'clock tea and sandwiches. That's the end of one day in a small boy's life in Denmark.

In this month of June again the school children will be let out of school. This wholesale exodus will increase the traffic hazzards. For then these little folks will be playing and going on errands during all parts of the day. It behooves all of us who drive to be carefull than ever so that the accident roll will be cut to the minimum, and if possible entirely eliminated. It is up to us parents to instill in the minds of our children, the great danger of crossing busy streets, to do no jay walking at all, always to look in all directions before crossing, never to dodge back and forth in the street and that it is better to run when the road is clear. Let us be especially careful this season and in that way we may save a life, or the maiming of some little one. Drinking and driving is a deadly threat against safety. Drink if you will, drive only when you are sober.

Erik and I killed a fair sized rattlesnake on the ridge road last week. As are all rattlers, he was a vicious customer, a well heaved rock soon took the fight out of him. Thinking about the episode later, this thought came to the surface. The rattler has the scientific reputation of being the fastest striking sanke, yet a rock heaved in comparative slow time cannot be dodged by the reptile. That must be the reason this type of snake is so short lived, a natural phenomenon.

FRENCH CORRAL
(By Mrs. Kate M. Sulivan)

FRENCH CORRAL, May 22—The past ten days have been reminders of the "good old summer time." If the heat will not register above 90 degrees we will try to be patient.

A large band of horses passed through today. We so seldom see horses nowadays that everyoone stopped to look at them. Many droves of cattle have gone through during the week. Sunday an airplane passed through, flying unusually low.

Our French Corral scnool closed this afternoon. An interesting program was presented by the pupils. After the program cake and ice cream were served, and heartily enjoyed by the elders, as well as by the children. All French Corral were in attendance. Mrs. F. H. Harris and Miss Lena Denike, of San Juan, Mrs. Margaret Madden and Mrs. J. Cironi of Birvhville were visitors. Andrew Dalberg, Rex Dalberg, and Mark Kauch are grammar grade graduates, also Harris Marten of San Juan. Among other guests were Mrs. Ella Smith, of San Francisco and Mrs. J. Dalberg, of Sacramento.

Both ladies were former residents of French Corral but all their school days and the school days of their children were spent in French Corral. There is ever a charm about the old school room that endears it to the heart. For there most of the joys and sorrows of youth were found.

Mrs. Ella Smith is visiting her sister, Mrs. W. E. Moulton.

Mrs. J. Dalberg is visiting the family of her son, Mr. R. A. Dalberg of this place.

Mrs. Merriman, who was teacher of the Birchville school for the past term, returned with her family to her home in Novato. Her daughter Lyda, who is attending the Nevada City high school, will remain with Mrs. M. Madden until the close of the term in June.

Columbia Parlor, N. D. G. held a meeting last Friday. They elected Miss Theresa O'Connor delegate to the June session of the Grand Parlor, with Mrs. Sarah Reader as alternate.

Mr. Al Jaynes and family came up last evening to spend Sunday with his mother, Mrs. R. Jaynes, who lives near Camptonville.

Mr. Haslett and Mr. Fowler were in French Corral on business Sunday. Mr. Haslett lives here, but has spent the past three months on the Wills' place near Camptonville, where he is caretaker.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Jarvis, of San Juan visited friends here Monday.

FRENCH CORRAL PERSONALS

Miss Lucy O'Conner, of Sacramento, is visiting relatives at Barchville.

Mrs. Motter left Tuesday for a three months trip to eastern cities and will be gone until October.

MissLyda Merryman is staying with Mrs. Madden at Birchville until the end of the Nevada City high school term.

DRESSY DESIGN IN FROCK FOR HOUSE OR STREET WEAR

PATTERN 9937

Looking lovely around the house is an art worth cultivating. It isn't a luxury to have good-looking morning frocks. It's just a matter of choosing the right designs. The frock in the illustration is so comfortably trim that it is nice to do your housework in, and yet, it has so many delightful fashion details that you can actually use the same pattern to make an afternoon or street dress. For mornings make it of one of the checked, striped or figured new cottons. For afternoons, use sheer cotton or silk.

Pattern 9937 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards 36-inch fabric.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth St., New York.

"Henry," said Mrs. Glipping in one of her tearful moods, "if I were to die, would you mourn for me?"

"Certainly I would, my dear," replied Mr. Glipping, as he scanned the financial page.

"And would you visit my—boo-hoo—grave sometimes?"

"Of course. Why do you ask such a foolish question? You know the cemetery is on the way to the golf links."—News (Dallas).

California
News of the Week

(By WNU Service)

Tourists in southern California in the seasons of 1932-33 provided jobs for 71,00 persons and spent $91,588,044, according to a survey conducted by an advertising organization. The survey showed that 784,541 tourists visited southern California during the travel season. It revealed that the tourists spent $20,149,370 for food alone and $17,401,728 for rent.

Fire permits will be required for control burning of brush, stumps, slashings, and other inflammable material in all counties in California for the remainder of the summer season, according to S. B. Show, of the U. S. Forest Service. He urges all motorists to dispose of burning matches and tobacco by placing them in receptacles in their cars.

Frank P. Christophel, Sacramento county treasurer, recently was elected secretary-treasurer of the County Treasurers' Association of California at the conclusion of their Sacramento convention. Other officers elected were: W. S. Heller, San Diego county, president, and Charles Redding, Marin county, vice president.

Storming five independent service stations when owners suddenly dropped gasoline prices, about 300 station operators blocked their drive ways for a short time until higher prices were posted.

Rolland Vandegrift, state finance director, has ordered the highway patrol and the printing plant to get together and determine if printing of citation tickets could not be done in the state plant. Because the tickets have a carbonized paper the work previously has been done by a manifolding book company.

E. Raymond Cato, chief of the State Highway Patrol, favors governors being attached to auto motors, limiting their top speed to 60 miles per hour. "Modern stock cars are so fast," he said, "that with the autos alloted to State officers the most dangerous drivers cannot be caught."

A sweeping investigation of all cases on Los Angeles relief rolls to weed out the chiselers and persons misrepresenting their condition to obtain relief, has been demanded in a resolution adopted by the supervisors and 35 trained investigators, recently hired by Los Angeles county to rid the charity rolls of unworthy people.

Sixty signatures, expressing the interest of as many students in the pure food and drug act, have already been affixed to a letter which the biology department of the South Pasadena High School plans to send to Congressman John H. Hoeppel. Interest in the question was aroused amongst the students during a recent study of foods.

Effecting an estimated annual saving of $100,000 to taxpayers the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors have taken steps to eliminate duplication of governmental functions by consolidating 46 townships into 24.

The State Department of Finance had advanced $14,143 to enable the State Supreme Court to meet its payroll from now to July 1st.

An organization with offices in Sacramento through which every member of each city government will be immediately informed of legislative proposals of lobbyists for private interests and against the interest of municipalities is the aim of the League of California Municipalities, it was announced recently in Fresno.

Success of the recently adopted Federal relief program in California depends upon the ability of county authorities to carry a share of the load, state relief administrator, R. C. Branion told a convention in San Diego recently. "Federal funds will be used to meet the cost of relief wages to workers on approved local projects," Branion said. "It will be necessary for local and state governmental units sponsoring such projects to meet the cost of materials and supervision."

Renewal of violence between Lake Tahoe resort owners and farmers of the Truckee river shed has been threatened as the farmers, faced by one of the worst droughts in their history, asked the federal government for a two-fold relief program. The first point, and the one expected to cause controversy, in an appeal for a mandatory emergency order which would permit the Washoe county water conservation district to pump water from Lake Tahoe into the Truckee river. In the second appeal, $15,000 of relief money will be asked with which stored water in Donner Lake would be purchased and released into the Truckee river.

Sacramento City and County Governments may save taxpayers about $30,000 a year by combining the offices of city and county tax collectors and assessors. Citizens of both city and county are asking that the consolidation be effected.

Mobilizing all forces for more widespread warfare against traffic and industrial accidents, the California committee on Public Safety and the California Safety Society held its first combined safety conference recently in Los Angeles.

Farm & Ranch
California Agriculture

(By WNU Service)

That the total income this year may exceed that of 1933 by approximately $7,000,000, was indicated by comparison based on the value of sheep, lamb, and wool production in California this year and last year. Improved conditions of the sheep industry will be felt over most of the state, according to a forecast by the State Department of Agriculture.

Notes from the field:

Mendocino county—Haying progressing good; unusually good crop of grass on the ranges and livestock conditions fine.

Shasta county—Pastures, ranges, and alfalfa condition good; walnut bloom very light.

Colusa county—Haying in progress and rice planting well along. Prunes slightly damaged by aphis. Puncture vine developing rapidly in infested areas. Sugar beets and truck crops making favorable progress.

Sacramento county—Bing and Royal Anne cherry harvest in full progress.

Yolo county—Pear set light, plums, peaches and apricots maturing rapidly. Irrigation of an excellent crop of sugar beets progressing.

San Joaquin county—Baby lima beans being planted; picking of Royal Anne cherries begun.

Stanislaus county—Peach thinning well under way, blackberry picking in full progress. Some early peaches ready for market.

El Dorado county—Stock conditions good and their movement to summer ranges under way.

San Benito county—Late grain somewhat shriveled by heat wave.

Tulare county—Early varieties of peaches, plums, and apricots moving in carload lots earlier than in any previous season of record.

Merced county—Sweet potatoes, tomatoes, and other truck crops progressing satisfactorily.

Kern county—Potatoes moving in good volume. Excellent stands of cotton; chopping about completed.

Santa Barbara county—Grain and hay crops considerably damaged by grasshoppers and lack of rain. Walnut crop set light.

Los Angeles county—Avocados set good; very light crop of peaches is expected.

Riverside county—Dates progressing well; fig crop light, but weather favoring their development.

Imperial county—Watermelon and canteloupe shipments heavy; grapefruit light.

For the first time in the ten years that the Los Angeles county insectary has been operated, climatic conditions during the winter having been moderate enough to allow the mealy-bug-destroying ladybird beetle to remain active in the citrus orchards. This is expected to prove an aid in holding down the normal spring increase in mealy bugs which, when abundant, cause heavy losses to citrus growers by causing the fruit to drop.

Imports of shelled almonds into the United States during March amounted to 194 tons, as compared with 162 tons during March 1933, and as a consequence almond growers are seeking to have the tariff boosted to protect their California interests. Tariff rates on imported almonds are 16½ cents for the shell variety and 5½ cents a pound on unshelled. Most of the almonds imported this year were shipped from Spain and Italy.

Practically all the honey producing sections in the state except Sacramento valley are in bad shape, according to the state department of agriculture. The principal reason is that the mild spring brought early flowerings that evaporated their honey before the bees got their wings. Great numbers of Southern California bees face starvation as a consequence. With practically all 1933 holdover honey sold a material price increase is to be expected.

Marketing agreements, wherever applied, have been responsible for increasing the prices for California agricultural products, E. L. Markell, AAA field representative said recently. "The peach agreement was responsible for a price of $20 a ton to producers as compared with $5 or $6 the preceding year," he said. "The tokay grape agreement resulted in a $500,000 growers profit and the walnut agreement has boosted returns at least $2,000,000."

Southern California's avocado groves may produce 18,000,000 pounds of fruit this season, compared with the largest crop so far of only 5,000,000 pounds, according to F. R. Wilcox, of the University of California. He believes that a greater market for California avocados must now be created in the east in order to stimulate buying.

Serious damage to the fig crop by the dried-fruit beetle is likely in August and in September, according to the United States bureau of entomology. Census trapping for this year indicates a large number of the beetles survived the winter. Another pest threatening California agriculture is the raisin moth, which is said to thrive first on the fruit of mulberry trees, many of which are being planted in the Fresno district. The mild spring, experts say, is responsible for the unusual crop of parasites attacking California crops.

NEW POINTS IN CAR OF FUTURE

Writer Doubts Plane Will Displace the Auto.

Every year the automobile shows turn our thoughts to next year's cars. But motor manufacturers, unless I am much mistaken, are at heart more concerned with the cars of two, three or even four years hence. If makers did not habitually look far ahead, the time would come when "next year's models" showed no changes at all except in body work.

Builders are experimenting with single-pedal control, with small engines producing even greater horsepower, and similar developments of the near future. Let us look at the car of ten, twenty and even fifty years hence.

The first objection that will be raised is: "Cars will not be used in 1984; every one will travel by airplane." I do not anticipate that flying will make such strides, Prof. A. M. Low, British scientist and author, writes, in the Philadelphia Public Ledger. We have first to establish the plane which can descend and ascend vertically, to overcome entirely certain weather conditions such as fog, and to find a way of getting more power from our fuel. For many years flying will call for lengthy training, and I put the time when the ordinary man will know how to land his plane on his own roof or in a gale at more than fifty years ahead.

Until this time motor cars will be necessary. In my opinion they will remain universally popular for journeys of less than 100 miles, especially as the average speed rises. But their character will change completely.

The first thing we shall notice about this car of the future is its shape. It will be as carefully streamlined as an ocean liner. There is no great inducement to streamline cars at the moment, for air resistance does not begin to count appreciably at low speeds, and the number of persons who wish to travel 90 miles per hour on our roads is small compared with those who drive comfortably at 28 miles per hour.

In the future higher speeds will be possible because of improved traffic conditions. Safe roads of reasonable width will be available. Slow-moving vehicles will be barred from motor roads, and pedestrians will either be railed off or carried on overhead footways. Sixty miles an hour will be a safe average speed, while the absence of unbanked corners on these special roads will make much higher speed possible. Cars may even be signaled automatically like trains, so that no two cars are ever within 200 yards of each other.

Air resistance increases as the square of the speed, and after 60 miles per hour much of the energy is devoted to overcoming air pressure. Streamlining will, therefore, be of tremendous importance and the car of the future will have smooth lines from end to end. No spare wheel, headlight, windshield or mascot will jut out. The result will be that, with engines developing lower horsepower, higher speeds will be accomplished.

Manufacturers will aim at getting more out of their fuel. At present about 50 per cent of the potential energy in fuel is wasted. Experiments are now being made which may teach us more about combustion.

This year many cars are having radio sets installed. The cars of the future might have not only a radio receiver but also a cocktail bar, wash basin and many similar luxuries.

I expect the long-distance touring car of the future, as distant from the runabout, to have a bed, a bath and similar fittings, so that the busy man can actually "get up" while being driven to work. He will think nothing of living 100 miles away from his office, shaving in comfort in his perfectly sprung limousine.

One of the most striking changes will be the elimination of noise. The car of the future will be acoustically designed and cleverly sprung so that the passenger in the back cabin will not know that he is moving until he looks out the window.

Firestone LEADERSHIP

"The Ultimate Test of Leadership is Performance"

FIRESTONE maintains its leadership in tire development by producing a new tire for 1934 with a wider tread, flatter contour, deeper non-skid, greater thickness, and more and tougher rubber, which gives greater non-skid safety, more traction, greater blowout protection, and more than 50% longer non-skid mileage.

These achievements are made practical by the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping, providing greater adhesion between the plies of the high stretch cords and between the Gum-Dipped body of the tire and the tough, massive non-skid tread. It also provides greater strength, longer flexing life, and greater protection against blowouts.

Gum-Dipping made it possible for Firestone to design, develop and put on the market the first successful balloon tire in 1923. This tire was the pattern used by all others and completely revolutionized the tire industry and set new standards for the automobile industry.

For fourteen years leading race drivers have driven to victory on Firestone tires, built with Gum-Dipped high stretch cords. They have trusted their lives to Firestone Leadership—as they know that the patented Firestone construction features provide them with greater safety—longer mileage—and greater blowout protection.

Have your Firestone Dealer or Service Store replace your smooth dangerous tires with the new Firestone High Speed Tires for 1934.

NEVADA CITY'S SHARE OF LIQUOR TAX IS $901.28

SACRAMENTO, May 8—State liquor license fees totaling $1,299,862 representing collections from December 5, 1933 to April 1, 1934, were apportioned to California cities and counties and the State General Fund today, the State Board of Equalization announced.

Nevada City received $901.28 of the total, with Nevada county being apportioned $1,069.80 as its share of liquor license fees from places outside of incorporated areas, the boards report said.

Under the state law, 60 per cent of the proceeds goes to cities and counties with 40 per cent being retained by the State General Fund.

Contrary to reports, the Liquor Control Division spent but 11.2 per cent of collections for administration of the Liquor Control Act to April 1, the statement said.

A total of $1,681,799 in license fees was collected by the Board during this period. Expenses totaled $188,361 to April 1, with an additional $193,575 being with held for administrative expenses to December 31, 1934.

The board pointed out that administrative costs under this act have been comparatively low, considering that more than 40,000 licenses have been individually investigated by the Liquor Division.

In addition to the license fees returned to the cities and counties by the state, these political sub-divisions receive all fines levied against violators of the act.

State Controller Ray L. Riley, has begun drawing warrants payable to the cities and counties, all of which must be mailed by June 1.
